MESSAGE FROM THE BOARD

The key to success within any organisation is how we recruit, retain and develop our staff. How each individual performs is crucial to our sustainability and effectiveness.

This framework has been designed to accurately reflect the key behaviours that we all need to demonstrate to perform at the high level expected.

We expect you all to know the behaviours that are relevant to your jobs and the roles of the staff that you manage. Meeting these standards of behaviour and developing our capability to exceed them will ensure that we continue to improve and respond flexibly to challenging and changing needs and also fulfil our potential as the organisation of choice in the areas in which we operate.

INTRODUCTION

What are competencies?

Competencies are behavioural descriptors of the way an individual is likely to perform against a required standard for a role. In general they describe how an individual is expected to carry out their particular role. They do not describe what a person does.

Why have a competency framework?

The framework allows us to easily identify the behaviours that drive successful performance and enables us to demonstrate and deliver our skills and expertise effectively.

They provide individuals with an indication of the behaviours that are valued and recognised.

Behavioural competencies clearly set out for all staff and managers the behaviours that are required in order to be successful. This helps people understand what is expected of them, provides clarity about the team and individuals within it.

As they emphasise the behaviours that are crucial for success in the organisation they provide a clear focus for development and support.

The framework content will be used throughout our people processes. Some of the ways that it may be used are:

- To support effective recruitment and selection
- To improve and inform the performance appraisal and management processes
- To assist in identifying training and development needs and career development
- To develop individual skills
- As part of team development
- To underpin talent management
- To support the design and commissioning of training and development programmes
- To develop the leaders of the organisation

FRAMEWORK DESIGN

The behaviours differ from junior to more senior roles, moving from operational to more strategic.

HOW TO ASSESS YOUR COMPETENCIES

You can assess your competencies at any time for your own personal development. However, we will be asking all employees to assess their competencies in preparation for appraisal review meetings.

To assess your competency development, it may help you to complete a Competency Assessment Worksheet.

Use the following scale to rate your level of achievement as it occurs in the workplace then explain your evaluation in the space provided on the sheet.

More Expected

You either have not yet had an opportunity to practice this competency or you occasionally or frequently do not meet expectations for this competency.

Meets Expectations

You consistently meet and occasionally exceed expectations.

Above Expectations

You understand and demonstrate this competency. You are considered to be a role model by others and regularly exceed expectations.

Once you've chosen a rating, include two or three examples of how and when you've demonstrated this competency.

Sample assessment

Competency name: Working within teams

Level: 2

Level	Above Expectations	Meets Expectations	More required
Your rating			X

Answer the following questions related to your competency development:

Where and how have your experiences demonstrated competence?

- I always attend team meetings and read group emails sent to the team.
- I always follow team decisions

Why have you chosen your competency rating?

- I'm not always consistent in acknowledging the work of co-workers and don't always respond in a receptive manner when they voice their opinions/perspectives
- I need to share ideas and contribute more at team meetings

What are your competency gaps?

- I don't always listen to others' opinions
- I am reluctant to contribute at team meetings

How will you address these gaps in the future?

- When my colleagues give their opinion I will work harder at listening and accept that they have different opinions
- I will contribute at team meetings and share ideas that will improve the way that the team works
